Location & Local Information

Commonly considered one of London's loveliest streets, the pedestrianised Motcomb Street is just minutes from Knightsbridge and Sloane Square tube stations. Perhaps the street's most famous edifice is the ornate Greek Revival style, Pantechnicon, built in 1834. Once a 19th century arts and crafts centre (Pantechnicon derives from the Greek words Pan 'all', and Techne' craft and art'), this five-storey building is now a Nordic and Japanese lifestyle hub with restaurants, cafes and a rooftop bar.

Of course, two key reasons to come to Belgravia and surrounding districts of Central London are the shopping and the dining. The aforementioned Pantechnicon is as good a bet as any, but there's also Motcombs Bar and Restaurant, Petrus by Gordon Ramsay, The Alfred Tennyson, The Nags Head, and L'eto Caffe. As for the shopping, well, there's no shortage of shops and indeed no shortage of history (the first Jimmy Choo shoe store opened on Motcomb Street in 1996), and there's also Tissa Fontaneda, Neill Strain Floral Couture, and, of course, the nearby Harrods.

Another wonderful advantage of Eaton Apartment's central location is its proximity to some of London's most stunning sights and attractions. Buckingham Palace is only a stone's throw away, as are its pleasant green surrounds, including St James's Park, The Green Park, and Hyde Park. Take a stroll down The Mall to Trafalgar Square to take in the timeless glories of The National Gallery or the spectacular shows and bars in the West End. Or make your way down to the River Thames, going past Big Ben and the Houses of Parliament.
